

ABSTRACT

After a successful determination of an application environment for the communication device, a security configuration is selected from a number of stored security configurations and the communication device configured according to the selected security configuration.